MY STAGES

Hi, I’m Shishir.

Every moment is a stage.

I didn’t start with textbooks. I started on a stage at 13, facing an audience that could silence me with a glance. Debates, live TV and Model UN taught me to build arguments and stay calm under pressure. Today I study Economics at AIUB, and I love debating an idea, designing it, and building something practical for Bangladesh.

India for the launch. Keep options open for the next phase.

Regional sourcing wins on the balance PVM needs now: dependable quality, viable cost and manageable speed.

RECOMMENDATION · REGIONAL SUPPLIER (INDIA) — SCORE 64.7 / 100

BDT 3.50
landed cost / unit
vs Italy at BDT 4.60

20 DAYS
lead time
15 days faster than Italy

4.5 / 5
flavour consistency vs local at 3.5 / 5

ROBUSTNESS CHECK

72% of 20,000 random weight sets ranked India first

4 OF 5 SCENARIOS

India wins balanced, equal, cost-first and speed-first tests.

WHY THIS BALANCE MATTERS

01 Protect the experience
4.5/5 consistency supports premium positioning.

02 Protect launch economics
Save BDT 1.10/unit vs Italy.

03 Protect launch momentum
20-day pipeline is faster than Europe.

DECISION RULE → India is the launch default; Italy is a controlled premium test; local sourcing earns scale only after quality validation.

Model note: criteria weights are my judgement (consistency 30%, cost 25%, lead time 20%, reliability 15%, investment 10%).

Every sourcing option wins somewhere. India wins the launch decision.

A decision is only useful when the trade-offs are visible.

ITALY

WINNER

India saves BDT 4.1 lakh in Q1 vs Italy*

375,000 units × BDT 1.10 difference, assuming full-capacity Q1 volume.

WHY NOT DUAL NOW?

BDT 3.4 lakh annual saving vs India at 1.35M units; 12-year payback on BDT 40 lakh investment.

Planning assumption based on 375K Q1 units. Cost and lead-time figures are from the case; weighted score is the candidate model.*

Launch from pilot stock. Replenish before widening.

The supply chain cannot deliver in days. Use existing stock to start, then let Day 7 data control the rollout.

DAY-7 CONTROL PANEL · PROPOSED TARGETS

Fill rate	≥95%	On-time	≥90%	Outlet availability	≥95%
Trial	By campus	Sales	2,470/day *	Stock cover	≥25 days

THE REPLENISHMENT MATH

4,110 units/day at full capacity

82K units in 20-day pipeline

Reorder at 25 days cover = 20-day lead + 5-day safety buffer.

2,470/day assumes 60% of annual capacity over a 91-day quarter. Border and customs lead time must be validated before launch.*

Price the risk. Define the trigger. Act before shelves go empty.

These are stress-test exposures, not forecasts. Every mitigation needs a clear intervention point.

FX / LC DELAY — ~BDT 1.1L — EXPOSURE

10% Taka weakening adds BDT 0.30/unit.

ACTION → Fixed-price terms; stagger payments; keep price cushion.

Trigger: FX moves >5%

PIPELINE GAP — ~82K units — EXPOSURE

20-day lead × ~4,110 units/day.

ACTION → Launch from pilot stock; order on Day 0; keep 5-day buffer.

Trigger: cover <25 days

ROUTE DELAY — ~20.5K units — EXPOSURE

Each 5-day delay consumes ~20.5K units of cover.

ACTION → Pre-clear documents; split shipments; pre-agree air freight.

Trigger: on-time <90%

QUALITY DRIFT — 3.5 vs 4.5 — EXPOSURE

Local consistency is below the regional score.

ACTION → Blind-test gate ≥4.0 before scaling local; cap Italian test at 10%.

Trigger: test <4.0

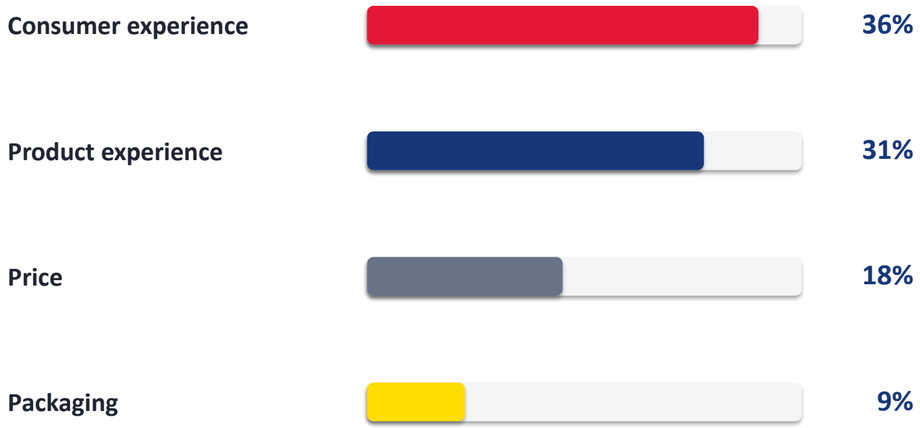

ESTIMATED Q1 STRESS EXPOSURE ≈ BDT 2.3 LAKH | ≈4% OF THE BDT 55 LAKH MIDPOINT BUDGET

Includes FX stress, safety-stock cash tied up (not a cost), and Italian test premium. Validate current cross-border conditions.

Protect the premium experience. Spend where it changes behaviour.

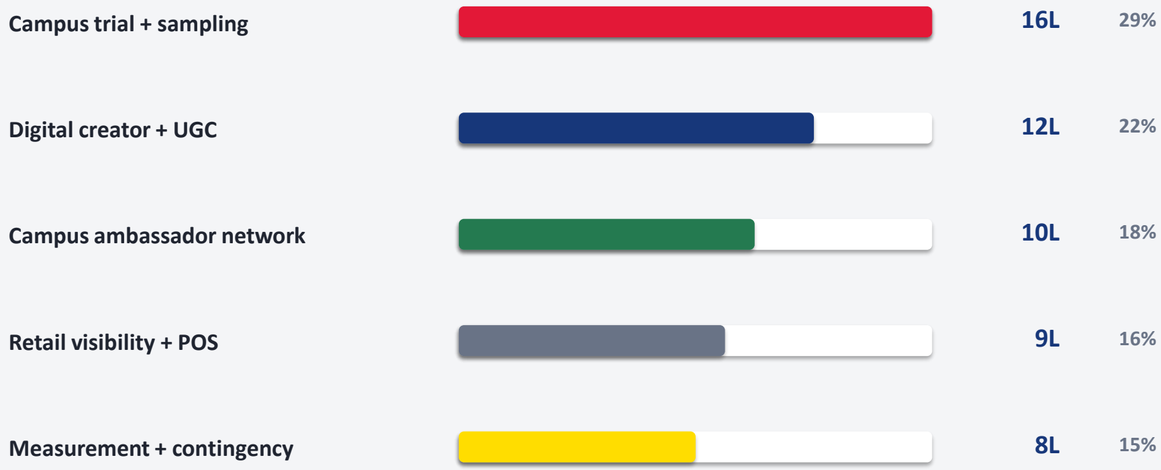

A BDT 10 gum cannot win by price alone. Build trial, make the experience memorable, then earn repeat purchase.
